THE COMMISSIONERS OF EMIGRATION.

Special Correspondence of the N. Y. Daily Times.

ALBANY, Saturday, March 8, 1856.

Among the petitions presented was one from R. W. Raney, praying that the Harbor Commissioners might be furnished with the necessary money to pay the claims for the work has been charged by them. Another, by Mr. Harvey, from 120 colored citizens of Brooklyn, for the right of suffrage. Several were presented from Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin, for the bridge across the Niagara at this place.

"REFORM COMMITTEES" THIS YEAR.

Mr. Wadsworth called up the resolution offered some days since for the appointment of a Committee of Nine, to examine bills and report those suitable to be referred to Select Committee to report complete.

Mr. Cushing moved an amendment naming the gentlemen who should constitute the Committee, as follows: Messrs. Fenton, Graves, Cole, Jullaud, Northup, E. T. Wood, Jenkins, Scott, Glover and J. R. Clark, being three of each party. He urged his amendment, expressing his greater confidence in this Committee than one to be appointed by the Speaker. He said the gentlemen named had not been consulted, but he assumed the responsibility for himself.

Mr. Cushing followed in an able argument against "Reform Committees."

Messrs. Roberts, Cole and Pheenegass, also here strongly spoke against the practice, and expressed their unwillingness to serve on the Committee.

Mr. Fenton opposed the "Committee of Nine" as an "innovation," destructive to all purity of legislation, and gave examples of its bad effect.

Messrs. Graves, Harris and others, also opposed the measure, and it was indefinitely postponed by a [illegible] vote, not, we trust, to be called up again this session.

The practice of conferring full Legislative powers upon committees, is in fact six, as only a two-thirds vote is necessary, which is the effect of the [illegible] is most dangerous, and we are glad to see the amendment made of it.

THE BROADWAY RAILROAD.

Mr. Brooks introduced a bill to confirm the proceedings of the Common Council of the City of New-York, relative to railroad on Broadway and other streets of said City. It provides:

SECT. 1. The resolution passed by the two Boards of the Common Council of the City of New-York, the last section of which was laid on the 30th day of December, 1855, giving the authority and consent of the Common Council to JACOB SHARP and others to lay a single track for a Railway in Broadway, and White-street, from the South Ferry to Fifty-second-street, and to continue the same along Bleecker-street, from Broadway to Manhattanville, as provided in the ordinance, be ratified, confirmed and established, and the said Jacob Sharp and others, their associates and assigns, may construct and run such railway upon the terms provided by the Legislature, or with the rights and assets by the provisions of section 5 of this act, notwithstanding any objection or other instrument to the contrary; nothing in this act, however, shall be construed to impair the obligation of any contract.

SECT. 2. That Jacob Sharp, Cornelius W. Lawrence, William Sharp, Jacob A. Westervelt, Stephen Whitney, Moses Taylor, Melvin H. Morgan, Cyrus Curtiss, Jacob Lorillard, and Samuel F. Pinckney, are constituted a body corporate, for the purpose of laying down such railway along the streets mentioned in section 1 of this act, within one year from the passage of the resolution of the Common Council, and to complete the same within two years from the passage of this act, and to construct and run such cars upon said railway, and that in their judgment it has proved injurious to said interests, then the said railway shall cease, and this act shall be void, otherwise the same shall continue. Vacancies in the Board are to be filled by the Governor.

SECT. 3. The said grantees or their assigns shall groove a space between four and five feet wide, through that part of the carriageway of Broadway laid with Russ or block pavement, or shall pave such space with rough stone, so as to afford a safe footing to horses.

SECT. 4. This act takes effect immediately.

BATTERY-PLACE.

Mr. Mason introduced a bill to confirm and legalize the resolution of the Common Council of New-York City, providing for the widening of Battery-place.

The bill confirms the resolution passed Dec. 31, 1855, authorizing the widening of Battery-place, and directs the Street Commissioner to proceed with said opening in conformity with the resolution.

COLLECTION OF COSTS.

Mr. Scott brought in a bill authorizing the issuing of process for the collection of costs in certain cases. It is as follows:

SECT. 1. Whenever a Judge out of Court, or other officer authorized to perform the duties of such Judge, awards costs in any action or special proceeding in any Court of Record in the cases provided by law, process in the nature of an execution against personal property may be issued for the collection of such costs, in the same manner and with the like effect as if such costs had been awarded by the Court.

RECORDING CLERKS TO MAKE CERTAIN ENTRIES.

Mr. Scott also brought in the following:

SECT. 1. Whenever a judgment for the foreclosure of a mortgage upon real estate shall be entered, the Clerk of the County in whose office such entry shall be made, shall forthwith make a note in writing, upon the margin of the record of such mortgage, if such record be in his office, referring to the page and book where such judgment is entered.

ANONYMOUS LETTERS.

Mr. A. J. Smith proposes to prohibit the publication of anonymous letters and communications in newspapers, by an enactment like the following:

"Any editor or publisher of any daily, weekly or semi-weekly newspaper in this State who shall permit or cause to be published in his paper any anonymous letter or communication, shall upon conviction be fined a sum not exceeding $50, and if such article be libelous, or derogatory to the character of any individual, imprisonment, not to exceed six months, shall be added to the fine.

A good idea.

BANKING LAW.

Mr. Fenton brought in a bill to authorize banking associations, and regulate a very active [illegible]

Hudson, from King Ring to the opposite shore in Rockland County.

KELMAN HYGIENIC INSTITUTE.

Mr. Jenkins brought in a bill to incorporate the Kelmanic Hygienic and Healing Institute of New-York. It incorporates A. J. Kelmanic and sundry others a medical corporation for the alleviation of the sick by the combined influences deducted from all the various systems of medical practice, and for an improved house for invalids. Similar powers are conferred to those enjoyed by like corporations.

NEW HARBOR COMMISSIONERS.

On motion of Mr. Wakeman, the Standing Committee on Commerce and Navigation were authorized to proceed to New-York and Brooklyn in the investigation of matters connected with the Harbor Commission, and pending before the Legislature.

SENATE PROCEEDINGS.

In the Senate, Mr. Benson presented a memorial from the American and Foreign Bible Society for an amendment of their charter so they can hold additional or more real estate.

THE CODE OF PROCEDURE.

Mr. Noxon reported favorably on the Criminal Code of Procedure, and urged its passage. He said he came here prejudiced against it, as he knew a great number of our lawyers and judges were. He was prejudiced because he had never read it—since perusing it he had become a convert. This, he believed, was the case with most who oppose it. He concluded by urging the Senators to read it for themselves.

NEW-YORK MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE CO.

Also, by bill, relative to the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New-York, obliging them to make a report to the Supreme Court of the First Judicial District, and giving the Court power to appoint a referee to examine into all their present and past acts, which report is to be filed with the Comptroller within 30 days after it is made.

Mr. Mason reported favorably on the bill creating an Insurance Department, (introduced by Mr. G. P. Smith.)

Mr. Sickles, favorably on the bill to legalize the widening of Battery-place.

NEW-YORK CITY CHARTER.

Mr. Brooks reported for the consideration of the Senate the bill amending the New-York City Charter, with amendments. The bill, as reported, is substantially that adopted by the Board of Councilmen, with two additional sections, as follows:

Every concurrent resolution, act and ordinance which shall have passed either Board, to be valid must be concurred in by the other Board prior to the first Monday in January next after its passage.

All officers mentioned in section 19 of this act and now in office, and all heads of bureaus now in office, in the departments mentioned in said section, may hold their offices for the residue of the time to which they were respectively elected or appointed, subject to be removed only by impeachment or by the Common Council, as provided in section 20 of this act, but in other respects subject to all the provisions of this act, excepting that the compensation of no such officer or head of bureau, now paid by salary, shall be changed during his term.

THE COLONIAL HISTORY.

Mr. Wadsworth introduced a bill giving the Regents of the University sole power and control with regard to the future publication of the Colonial History of the State, and gives to each member and officer of the present Legislature to do with as they chose and to furnish all the colleges, academies and public libraries with copies, and then the Regents may sell the remainder at a not less price than $1 50 per volume, and if any are then left the Regents may give them away as they please.

NEW-YORK PURE MILK COMPANY.

Mr. Brooks introduced a bill to incorporate the New-York Pure Milk Company. The corporators are JONATHAN A. WEMPLE, ROBERT M. SPRANCHE, DAVID T. COON, and associates, and the object is to supply the City of New-York with pure and wholesome Milk—the Milk to be placed in metallic cans and delivered in charge thereof, the Milk in all cases to be drawn by means of a faucet. The cows from whence the said Milk shall be obtained, shall be fed exclusively on hay, grain, grass and other vegetable provender, and shall be allowed such free air and exercise in the open fields as shall be deemed necessary to preserve in a good, sound and healthy condition. The capital stock to be $150,000, divided into shares of ten dollars each.

THE BANKING LAW, ETC.

Mr. Wadsworth introduced a bill amending the general banking law by requiring a certificate from individual bankers, sworn to and filed with the Secretary of State, giving in detail the name of the firm they are connected with, (if any,) location, &c., the amount of their deposits, discounts, &c. [This is intended as a means to ascertain the amount of their property with a view to taxation.]

Mr. Sickles introduced a bill to repeal Chapter 147 of the Laws of 1854, in relation to insolvent debtors.

Also, a bill to repeal Chapter 296 of the Laws of 1855, relating to lands to be acquired by the Morris Canal and Banking Company in this State.

Also a bill to facilitate the determination of certain equity suits pending in the Court of Chancery on the first day of July, 1847, by transferring them to the Court of Appeals in like manner as they would have been reviewed and determined by the late Court for the correction of errors.

Also a bill to determine the rights of children of American parents borne in foreign countries, giving them the same power to hold and convey real estate as if born in this State.

THE REGISTRY BILL.

The bill for the better security of the purity of Elections in the City of New-York, commonly called the "Registry bill," was read a third time and passed, by the following vote:

AYES—Messrs. Briggs, Brooks, Ferdon, Hale, Harcourt, Hotchkiss, Lee, Nichols, Noxon, Petty, Ramsey, A. M. Smith, C. P. Smith, J. A. Smith, Sweet, and Towne—16.

THE COMMISSIONERS OF EMIGRATION—REPORT OF SENATE COMMITTEE.

The report of the Select Committee of the last Senate, composed of Senators Bisnop, Pratt and Bunn, appointed April 12, 1855, to examine into the affairs of the Commissioners of Emigration, was presented to-day. The resolution under which the Committee was appointed directs them to examine into all facts connected with the arrival of emigrants at New-York, their mode of transit to the West, the treatment they receive from emigrant runners and others, whether ship-owners sell permits to board their vessels and take of passengers, what price if any is paid, and all facts connected with the emigrant runners which would become a proper subject of legislation.

The Committee report that they have visited New-York and made a personal examination of the Institutions under the care of the Commissioners and instituted inquiry upon the questions directed, and from the report the examination seems to have been faithful and impartial.

The selection of Castle Garden as a depot for the landing of emigrants, which occurred subsequent to the appointment of the Committee, removed many of the causes of complaint existing at that time, while a new class have sprung up in consequence of the occupation of the Castle, by owners and occupants in that vicinity.

The Committee regard the subject of great moment to the emigrant and to the State, and recommend frequent investigations by the Legislature into the manner in which the responsible duties of the Commission are discharged.

Real Personal Property.—The Commissioners own in fee, one hundred and three acres of land on Ward's Island, the site of their buildings for the poor and sick. The buildings and improvements in building a dock, and introducing Croton water have cost about $300,000. The whole real property and fixtures on this Island, worth not far from $300,000. They also own in fee, four acres on Staten Island, worth $4,000.

The State assigned the Commissioners twenty-five acres on Staten Island, at the Quarantine ground, worth some $200,000, which by the consent of the Governor, Comptroller, and Attorney General, they may mortgage.

The Commissioners have paid from the Commutation Fund, for buildings and entire work principally on Ward's Island, $612,748 98. The buildings could not be used to much advantage for other purposes, but the improvements are valuable.

They have leased a building on Worth-street, and an office and a Labor Exchange and Intelligence Office on Cortlandt-street, at a rent of $1,300; also, a building on Franklin-street, leased till May 1, 1857, from which the Board of Health removed them, and now use a cholera hospital in August, 1855. They pay a rent of $1,400, and claim damages against the Board of Health.

The personal property of the Commissioners is worth $60,000. Ward's Island property and fixtures on Staten Island, and the personal property, make $254,000 held in trust for the State. The Staten Island Quarantine property is worth $200,000.

Debts.—The Commission are indebted by bond and mortgage to Mutual Life Insurance Company, on real estate on Ward's Island and Staten Island, in the sum of.....$150,000 00
Over-drafts due Mechanics' Bank, Dec. 1, 1855.....[illegible]
Due counties for expense of emigrants.....[illegible]
Bills from Kings County not adjusted.....[illegible]

The Ten Governors have a claim of $85,816 81, of the following items:
For supporting criminals at Penitentiary.....$14,685 83
For supporting Lunatics.....[illegible]
For supporting Idiots.....[illegible]
For supporting Aliens at Work-house.....14,[illegible]
For supporting Aliens at Bellevue Hosp.....[illegible]
For Interments from Ward's Island.....[illegible]
Total.....$[illegible]

The Governors also claim $48,000 for supporting vagrants and hospital patients in 1855. This is contested by the Commissioners, and, not being a legal claim, probably will never be paid. A suit is pending for part of the $85,000, the justice of a part of which is denied, and a set-off is claimed for the balance.

INSTITUTIONS.

Emigrant Intelligence Office and Labor Exchange.—The Committee speak well of this auxiliary located at No. 3 Canal-street, and point out its utility in several important particulars.

From Jan. 1, 1855, to Dec. 31, the day the Committee examined the office, there were males employed in the City and vicinity.....[illegible]

Marine Hospital and Quarantine at Staten Island.—The Commission have spent some $44,000 for the care and support of aliens. The beneficial effect of this Institution on the health of City and County commends it to the Legislature. By the action of the Legislature of 1849, the Hospital was devoted to treatment of patients infected with contagious diseases.

The Emigrant Refuge and Hospital on Ward's Island.—There are forty-two separate buildings which have been erected by the Commissioners on Ward's Island. They are well arranged and convenient, and afford ample room to accommodate all that will be needed. There were 6,166 inmates on the 1st of Jan., 1855, and 8,184 were admitted during that and the two following months. This shows the capacity for relief of this Institution.

Castle Garden Depot.—The Committee present a long and clear argument in favor of the use of Castle Garden as an Emigrant Depôt. No laws could protect emigrants from imposition and fraud if landed promiscuously on the docks. The selection of a place for the landing of passengers, from which runners, hotel keepers, &c., could be excluded, was essential for their protection. No other place could afford equal advantages to Castle Garden, for securing the comfort and safety of the emigrant. The abuses heretofore practiced upon emigrants had become a national disgrace, and all should take a pride in affording the protection humanity requires.

In seeking, however, to accomplish a great public good, private rights should not be invaded. The Committee have, therefore, felt called upon to examine the causes of the complaints of residents and owners of property in the neighborhood of the Castle. They give a large amount of testimony, and refer to the evidence taken in the case of Mr. Barnum against the Commissioners.

They present briefly the causes of complaint, as follows:

First.—That the Corporation of New-York had no authority to lease the Garden for the purposes to which it is applied.

Second.—That the collection of such crowds of destitute and filthy persons in streets leading to the Castle and on the Battery creates a nuisance and reduces the value of property.

Third.—That the health of the City will become endangered.

They reply to the first, that the Courts will decide that point. So far, decisions have been with the Commissioners.

To the second cause of complaint they suggest that if the Commissioners should abandon the Castle, they would be compelled to find a Depôt elsewhere which would result to the equal disadvantage of the property-holders and others who have lived upon emigrants landing there.

3. The danger of the vicinity to infection is a point upon which "Doctors differ." They however conceive the location to be favorable one, in this respect, from its distance from other buildings, the fine air, &c. The former practice of landing and conveying the passengers and their baggage through the streets to various parts of the City, was obviously more hazardous than the present. They are satisfied that the present location conduces to the health of the City, and lessens the danger from contagious diseases. They refer to the decision in Mr. PHŒNIX's case, Abbott's Reports, 1st vol., page 446.

Any attempt at removal would involve greater hazard and more inconveniences.

To go above the business parts of the City would compel ships to go up and return. The emigrant also must then return to the City to take passage to the interior. To the occupancy of any pier, the same objections at present urged, would apply. The Commissioners, in a former year, were driven from the occupancy of a pier, in an insulated position, by property owners in the neighborhood.

Frauds.—The Committee state that the fraud in selling tickets on this side the ocean is now in a great measure prevented, but they are conducted to some extent on the other side the Atlantic. Tickets are there sold of no possible value, at prices greater than the actual fare to the points named on them. The Committee recommend engaging the efforts of Consuls and others to correct this evil.

It is thought by some that the Commissioners desire a profit from the sale of tickets to emigrants. The Committee could elicit no proof of this, the evidence being only rumor, and the Commissioners distinctly testify that no member of the Board, or any person connected with them, desire any profit from the sale of tickets or landing of emigrants. As far as can be learned, the emigrant obtains his ticket as cheap as he could outside.

Amount due to Counties.—Fifty cents of the commutation, by the law of 1849, goes to the several counties. This has not been paid during the last year, and there was due Jan. 1, 1856, the sum of $72,047 28. The sudden decrease of emigration curtailed the resources of the Commissioners, and it was beyond their power to pay the counties and support the poor dependent on them.

They were compelled to turn loose upon the City or country the poor and rich, or to use the money belonging to the counties; they chose the latter alternative, as dictated by humanity; and the counties must wait.

The Commission has been in operation nearly nine years; during this time 2,082,819 alien emigrants have arrived at New-York, from whom $2,593,439 has been received as commutation, and $62,478 23 from special bonds, penalties, &c., making in all $2,924,497 52, with which they have purchased the property mentioned, and relieved the State of the burden of the pauperism, &c., following in the train of so large an immigration.

Their plans were laid with reference to a future increase equal to the past, but the sudden falling off shows their arrangements to have been on too extended a scale, and disaster to their finances has been the result. If the emigration continues to fall off, the fund cannot meet the charges upon it, and the burden of the great emigration of '53 and '54 will be felt for two or three years to come. If it continues moderately, by rigid economy the fund can ultimately meet the burden.

The real and personal property of the Commission is nearly equal in value to their indebtedness.

The Committee do not recommend an increase of the Commutation Fund, but that the time for which the emigrant is a charge on the fund be shortened from 5 to 4 years.

During the months of August, September and October last, 84,199 emigrants arrived, bringing $1,402,-[illegible] 16, or an average of $47 each, after paying passage.

Of these, 10,848 reported that they designed to remain in the State, being $469,157 19 in cash. The others, 68,857 in number, would pay, if they all passed through the State, four dollars each, or nearly $[illegible],000, for passage.

The Committee think a proper curtailment of expenses has been effected, and that, if present embarrassments are overcome, and affairs are managed with economy, the institution will, with a reasonably uniform emigration hereafter, be what it was intended to be, self-supporting.

Death of Senator Pratt.—The report, which is signed by Senators Bunn and Bass, concludes by alluding to the death, after the termination of the labors of the Committee, but before the report was signed, of Senator THOMAS R. PRATT, a public-minded legislator, a just and amiable citizen, and a true and worthy man.

THE N. Y. D. TELEGRAPHING.

The Telegraph statement of the numbers in attendance upon the "Fillmore and Dearborn Ratification Meeting" last night, is a most startling and extravagant misrepresentation of the truth.

A very successful and efficient [illegible] quite equal to that in attendance upon Fremont's Democratic lecture a few evenings since. But the majority of the Assembly Chamber is known to not exceed 600, and but one or two hundred persons assembled outside.

Here the report sent to the Associated Press is regarded simply in the light of a good joke, or an attempted exaggeration so far without the bounds of reason as to be simply ridiculous. LEO.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Affray Among the Ladies' Parlor of the National Hotel.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, March 9.

A serious affray occurred in the ladies' parlor of the National Hotel to-day, between a boarder named STUART and a Mr. MANON, who had called. Some ill-feeling previously existed between the parties. STUART fancied that MANON treated him disrespectfully, and, approaching him while sitting on a sofa with a mutual lady friend, he remarked: "You are an insolent puppy!" at the same time presenting his card, which MANON threw in STUART's face. STUART immediately struck him a blow, and the parties clinched and fought a few seconds, when Gov. BROOK interfered and separated them.

Immediately afterwards the scuffle was renewed when MANON drew a small pocket pistol, placed it against STUART's side, and fired. STUART pushed MANON's hand aside just in time to save himself, the ball glancing across his abdomen close enough to burn and tear his pantaloons, but inflicting no other injury.

STUART, who is a very tall and powerful man, received no blows from MANON, whom he held with one hand while he beat him severely with the other fist, cutting and bruising him seriously. The parties were finally separated by BROOK of Pennsylvania, and the hotel cashier.

When the affray commenced, several ladies were present, who fled the room.

The proprietors are deeply mortified at the occurrence, and have requested STUART to leave the house, and forbid MANON from visiting the ladies' parlor.

The British Special Dispatch.

Special Correspondence of the N. Y. Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, March 4, 1856.

A very interesting and important debate occurred in the Senate to-day, on a novel question. It will be remembered that during last Congress the Senate, in Executive session, passed a resolution authorizing or advising the President to give to Denmark the usual notice of the termination of our treaty with her under which we were formerly accustomed to the abolition of the right of the Danish Crown to levy Sound dues on American commerce at Elsinore Sound. The President accordingly gave the notice, and informed the Senate of the fact in his last annual message.

A few days ago Mr. FESSENDEN introduced a bill of inquiry as to whether such notice of the termination of a treaty can be constitutionally given without authority of an act of Congress, and whether, therefore, some legislation is not necessary in order to give effect to the notice already issued by the Executive. Mr. S. called up his resolution this morning, and addressed the Senate in a brief, elegant, and forcible speech in its support. The treaty in question provided that it should continue in force for ten years, and that after that time it might be terminated by either party, on one year's notice to that effect.

Mr. SUMNER maintained that the parties to a treaty are the two Governments primarily interested, and that it was not competent for the treaty-making power, but for Congress only, to give the notice of abrogation provided for. Let Congress which represents the "party" to the treaty on our side, and Mr. S. repudiated the idea that because the President and Senate can make a treaty, therefore they have the power to abrogate it also. The Constitution makes a treaty, after its ratification, part of the Supreme law of the land, and it thus not only derives all the force and high authority of statutory law, but is surrounded by the same safeguards as are the statutes, and can be got rid of only in the same way. The war-making power, which abrogates all treaties, is lodged by the Constitution in Congress, and so, by parity of reasoning, the power to abrogate a single treaty must rest in Congress. Mr. S. also cited from STORY's Commentaries, and other authorities, to show that, under the Constitution of the United States, a treaty has all the force, sanction and quality of law, and that the Executive might tear a leaf from the statute book with just as much propriety as he could undertake to put an end to a treaty.

To show the practice of the government in other cases, he referred to the Treaties with France, which were abrogated by the United States for non-performance, in 1798, by an act of Congress, which originated in the Senate, and the discussion of which showed the general opinion of that day to have been that the Constitution of the United States required an act of Congress to repeal a treaty just as much as to repeal a law. So, too, in 1846, the celebrated notice to England of the termination of our Treaty of joint occupation of Oregon, was recommended by the President to be given by law, and a Joint Resolution was passed to effect the desired object. In conclusion, Mr. SUMNER submitted some observations in condemnation of the attempt by the President to illustrate the boast of Louis XIV., when, in the pride of his conscious power, he exclaimed, "I am the State!" He was opposed to these encroachments upon the power and the rights of the popular branch of Congress, and desired to know where or when, if unchecked, they might be expected to stop.

Mr. MASON, in reply, seemed to adopt the idea that the Senator from Massachusetts had fallen into error in supposing that the "notice" given by the President, under authority of the Senate, terminates the Treaty. This he did not consider to be true; on the contrary, the notice simply causes the treaty to terminate by its own limitations, its ten years of continuance having expired. The case of the treaty with France was a different one,—because then a treaty was abrogated forcibly by Congress, without the operation of any self-terminating clause.

Mr. SEWARD said his mind was perhaps not convinced, but it was much prepossessed by the argument of the Senator from Massachusetts. The present was a good occasion upon which to discuss the question, because the whole country was in favor of the termination of the treaty now in question. This treaty has reserved within itself a power for its termination or abrogation. Two branches of the Government—the Executive and the Senate—have assumed to act for the United States, and give this reserved power effective vitality. Whence did the Senate derive its authority to authorize the President to give this notice? The Constitution carefully defines the powers of the Senate,—and with respect to treaties simply authorizes it to make such instruments; but nowhere does it give any power to alter, repeal or abrogate them when once made. The power of the Senate is exhausted when the treaty is ratified; and it could not be concerned with the President after the treaty was perfected, in abrogating it, any more than it could undertake to reconsider it after ratifications have been exchanged. So, if the abrogation of the Treaty with Denmark is accomplished through the notice given by the President, it has been done by the act of the President alone—an act for which he is responsible solely from the concurrence of the Senate. The question remains—has the President alone any such power?—and the answer is in the negative, for the authority for the power can be shown anywhere. His only duty is to execute the behests and laws, or to see that they are executed. It certainly would seem from this that the notice of the termination of the treaty with Denmark is invalid and of no effect.

Mr. FESSENDEN supplemented Mr. MASON's construction of the treaty with Denmark, holding that it is a continuous treaty, and that the provision for its termination after ten years, upon one year's notice of either party, does not restrict its duration. The condition is, not that the treaty shall terminate in ten years, but that it shall continue at least that long, and as much longer as the parties thereto may choose to permit it. This being, of course, Mr. MASON's argument that the "notice" does not terminate or abrogate the treaty, if properly given, is in the premises. If the treaty, that is constitutional, and a "nullity," constitutionally, the question arises, by whom, must the notice be given? The treaty provides that it may be given by either of the parties. Who are "the parties?" The Treaty-making Power on one side, or the United States? If the latter, then the "notice" can only be given by Congress, and as it has not been so given, it has not been given at all.

I have devoted my letter to this subject, because of its novelty, importance and interest. It looks now as though the Senate would be compelled to the conclusion that the "notice" to Denmark has not been properly given; and so it may be, after all, that instead of our commerce being freed from the Elsinore exactions, from and after the 14th of April next, the case will be thrown open again for another year. This must be so, of course, unless Congress shall conclude that it has the power, now to legalize and make effective the notice already given. E.

The Affray at the National.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, March 9.

A disgraceful affray occurred in the Ladies' Parlor of the National Hotel this afternoon. A Mr. STUART of Louisville knocked down Mr. MANON, a resident of Washington, who retaliated by firing a pistol at his antagonist. The ball did not take effect, and the interference of bystanders prevented further difficulty. The matter originated in a fancied affront. The lessee of the hotel have requested Mr. STUART, who boarded at the hotel, to withdraw from the house; and have also forbidden Mr. MANON the privilege of frequenting the Ladies' Parlor. The latter is not a boarder at the National.

The Star of the West and 150 Fillibusters Off.

The Star of the West left Saturday at 3 o'clock, P. M., for Nicaragua, carrying with her some 150 fillibusters. The officers of the vessel scrutinized the tickets in advance, so that none were set on shore—as the custom is—at Sandy-Hook. The present party was decidedly of a better class than most of their predecessors. FRANCIS P. O'KEEFE, Esq., one of the "original indicted," was among the passengers. He was fortunate enough within the past week to get his bail (previously reduced from $5,000 to $1,500) discharged on his own recognizances to appear at the next term of the United States Circuit Court. Captain ARMSTRONG, of the Nicaragua Army, was another of the passengers. That man d presented at the St. Nicholas Hotel a few evenings since the Captain took with him for use. An immense crowd was present on the wharf, and the usual cheering was given.

Commissioner Bliss's Second Trial—Discharge of the Jury.

On Saturday morning, at 10½ o'clock, Recorder SMITH came into Court and discharged the Jury in the case of J. E. BELING, Commissioner of Streets and Lamps. They had been locked up in the Court Room during the night, having been twenty-three hours in deliberation. The Recorder expressed his sorrow at their inability to agree, especially as the Jury had disagreed on the former trial. Still, as there was no likelihood of their coming to a better understanding, he felt it to be his duty to discharge them. They separated accordingly, and in this unsatisfactory manner has this second trial come to an end. The Jury on Saturday, when they were discharged, stood eight for acquittal and four for conviction. On the former trial the Jury stood nine for conviction, and three for acquittal.—Will the District-Attorney try Mr. BELING a third time?

☞ Dr. PENNINGTON's (the Colored N. S. Presbyterian) Church of Marion-street had a handshaking with him on Saturday night last, and yesterday afternoon he preached his farewell sermon to them. He removes to Hartford, Conn., where a church is awaiting his pastoral services.

☞ Rev. Dr. HORACE BUSHNELL has leave of absence and a full salary meanwhile from his Church, for a year's visit to California. His bad health brings him to this relaxation.

☞ The Gift Enterprises still flourish—flourish in spite of the law and the Ten Governors. They do their share towards disgracing us.

☞ We see it stated that Rev. Dr. GUTHRIE, Pastor of the Church of the Pilgrims, is to have a colleague.

☞ Weather very cold yesterday. The ice seemingly thicker in the run as regards.

☞ Horrible smelling in the City—a terrible nuisance in the hot sun to-day.

The Canada mail steamship Arctic, Capt. Lewis, arrived at this port at 9 o'clock on Saturday afternoon. She left Liverpool at 12 o'clock on the day previous, and Queenstown at 1½ o'clock on the day following.

The Arctic brings no news of the sailing of the Pacific.

On the subject of the difficulties with the United States we have nothing new to report, except that the Russian Minister has stated in Paris that the Russian Government would not be aware that Mr. DALLAS could have any instructions or demands in regard to the Crimean Fleet and the fulfillment of the treaty.

The Vienna correspondent of the Times, under date of the 27th, says:

"The critical feeling of the Western Powers must be taken into account when we see Austria, Prussia, Sardinia, and perhaps Bavaria, all anxious to support the President of Congress in his desire to kill two birds with one stone. In plain language, the partisans are believed to have two reasons for agitating against England: the one, to compel us to submit to their dictation; the other, to embroil us with Russia, and thus to secure a very decent excuse with the Russian Court, but the regards its continued neutrality. Such is present to nothing, and it is not likely to be, unless some other power shall come to the rescue."

The Peace Congress will probably not meet on the day first fixed, but the delay is not alarming as to the result.

The new British loan had not been [illegible] at the Bank.

Nothing of any special importance has transpired in the British Parliament. In both Houses announcement was made that it is the intention of Government to appoint a Commission of Inquiry into the causes of the Crimean complaints. Lord Ellenborough, in the House of Lords, intimated that the Government contemplated the abolition of the Ministry of War, and the transfer of the duties of that office to the Minister of Marine.

It was rumored that the Minister of Marine intended opposition upon the subject, but it was generally supposed he would finally acquiesce.

Lord Jocelyn, Secretary of War, in the House of Commons, was questioned by Mr. Bright, who said that the Government had sent out a large number of recruits for the Crimean Army, and that they had been sent to the Crimea without any proper clothing, and without even a change of linen, and that they had been left upon the battlefield without any medical assistance.

General Bem, of Hungary, writes to the Morning Chronicle, denouncing certain statements which have been published in the Times, and which he says, are derogatory to the character of the Hungarian Legion, and to him as their commander, and he calls upon the Times to publish a retraction. FIRST WARD.

There in the First Ward should Wednesday evening, a large company of visitors being present. Mr. L. W. ARMSTRONG and Miss FRANCES A. COMSTOCK are the Principals here. The attendance of pupils has been large, but not quite so large as last term. The locality of these schools is on Greenwich-street, right back of Trinity Church—a dirty neighborhood, but a cleaner, more intelligent company you find nowhere in town. The whole thing is a marvel, and stranger and citizen are alike surprised at the sight of the young men and women—each boys and girls—here gathered. The singing, reading, ciphering and book-keeping were the best features of the examination.

FOURTH WARD.

Those of the Fourth Ward, held in No. 26, (James-street,) Miss LYDON and Mr. LAVELLE, Principals, had a fine large. The singing was admirable, and other exercises to match, the reading being specially excellent. The Girls' is one of the largest and most successful of evening schools.

FIFTH WARD.

The school in the Fifth Ward, which has done a deal of good this Winter, under the charge of ROSS CAMPBELL, Esq., closed with a fine display on Wednesday evening. It has been unusually successful the present term.

SIXTH WARD.

The Colored School in Laurens-street, near Second, under the care of Mr. WARE and Miss TOMPKINS, was visited by the officers and many citizens of the Sixth Ward, and made a satisfactory appearance. The people of this Ward have no prejudices against this excellent institution—indeed it is rather a favorite of theirs—to their credit be it said. The large school in Clarke-street, under the charge of Mr. M. J. O'DONNELL and Miss VAN ZANDT, had a fine attendance, and over 200 certificates were given out in both schools, which have been successfully managed in spite of some prophecies to the contrary.

SEVENTH WARD.

The Ninth Ward School held in old No. 3, Hudson-street, corner of Grove, had a very fine time at its closing session. Commissioner LEE, Mr. BUCKLIN and other school officers, and a number of visitors were present. The certificates were given out, examinations were held in arithmetic, book-keeping and reading. Declamation and singing enlivened the occasion. The attendance here has been less than at the former term, but the pupils generally have made fair progress, and maintained good order.

TENTH WARD.

The large and well-organized schools in the Tenth Ward, under the care of Commissioner WM. JONES, had a capital time at the closing of the Girls' school on Tuesday evening, and of the Boys' on Wednesday evening. The girls are under the care of Miss A. A. EDMONDS, and have done well. The boys, under the special charge of JOHN WALSH, Esq., had some fine debates, speeches and singing. This school is among the very best, and has attained a higher grade than usual. A crowd of visitors were present.

THE ELEVENTH WARD.

The large Evening School for boys, held in No. 18, in Fifth street, SENECA DURAND, Principal, with an attendance present of 451, closed its sessions on Wednesday night with interesting ceremonies. A large number of certificates were given out by Dr. MILLER, and Commissioner WHITE. The boys gave some admirable songs and speeches, which were received with great satisfaction. Master SENECA gave a declamation, and another pupil gave a specimen of violin music of considerable excellence. The two most talented of the performers were Irish and German.

A beautiful arm-chair was presented, in a neat speech, to the Principal by the boys.

The Girls' School closed with music, after giving out certificates, and a speech by Mr. BRADSHAW. The number of girls present was 180. The advancement of the pupils has been very satisfactory, and the order was without reproach. Miss FRANCES J. MURRAY is the Principal in charge.

TWELFTH WARD.

The School at Carmansville had a very small attendance, and closed without any unusual exercises. Mr. GRAFF has charge as Principal.

That of Harlem (JACOB WARNER, Principal) had an attendance of thirty-five, and made a fair exhibit of their progress.

FOURTEENTH WARD.

The Girls' School in Marion-street, under the care of Miss BARNUM, in the Fourteenth Ward, and the Boys' School, held in No. 32, in Baxter-street, under the charge of Mr. JOHN BOYCE, received their certificates on Wednesday night, after appropriate addresses from H. P. WEST and others. The advancement in both has been fair.

FIFTEENTH WARD.

The school, of first-rate reputation, held in No. 55, in West Thirteenth-street, near the Sixth-avenue, under the care of Mr. HUNTER and Miss BOYNES, proved itself up to its rate in point of scholarship, order and thorough organization. The classes in drawing and book-keeping were admirable.

EIGHTEENTH WARD.

The large well-managed schools in the Eighteenth Ward, under the care of DAVID B. ECCOTT, Esq., and Miss JANE M. GARRIGUS, Principals, assembled in the Chapel Hall, on Wednesday night, and had their farewell exercises. A little more attention to these, on the part of the officers and citizens of this Ward, would secure a larger attendance, and give to scores whose thoughts it now escapes, yet who sorely need them, the benefits of the Evening Schools. This ends the list.

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.

A QUIET DAY.

Sunday was as quiet and peaceful as it was windy and cold. Scarcely anything of moment was done at any of the Police Courts. The Magistrate and his Clerk, the sergeant and his squad, had thus an opportunity to pass the time in that calm reflection befitting the day, save when interrupted by the insane revings of some miserable drunkard who, from time to time, was dumped by a patrolman on the prisoners' bench.

BAD MONEY—BEWARE.

The City is "flooded" with counterfeit bank-notes, and almost every day during the past week some one engaged in putting them in circulation has been arrested by the Police. The greater part of these bills purport to be "fives" on the Bridgeport Bank of Connecticut. On Friday night two men, named Charles Storey and Jacob Schaffer, were arrested by Capt. Ackerman, of the Ninth Ward, charged with attempting to pass one of these counterfeits upon John Mooding, of No. 259 Sixth-avenue, in exchange for some articles of merchandise. The prisoners were committed by Justice DAVIDSON, of the Second District Police Court....On Saturday evening, information was given at the Sixteenth Ward Station-house that parties were traveling about the Ward engaged in passing counterfeit money. Two Policemen were detailed by Capt. McKee to hunt up the guilty parties, and they soon succeeded in arresting a man named William Blauvelt, and a girl aged 15 years, named Emma Louisa Johnson, who was in his company. Blauvelt, when arrested, attempted to get rid of a roll of counterfeit fives on the Bridgeport Bank. The prisoners were taken to the Station-house. Subsequently, on information given by the girl, a young man named Daniel Ackerman was arrested at his residence in Forty-first-street, charged with being an accomplice of Blauvelt. The prisoners were all committed for examination....Patrick Corcoran and Catharine Corcoran were arrested on Saturday evening by the Fourteenth Ward Police, and brought before Justice WOOD, who committed them for examination, on a charge of passing counterfeit fives on the Bridgeport Bank.

BAD POLICE.

A man named Lane, of No. 26 Laurens-street, was brought before Justice DAVIDSON, the other day, charged with assaulting John Lebert, of No. 10 Watts-street. The accused was bailed by a colored gentleman of means. On Wednesday last, Lane was again arrested, charged with selling lottery policies to John S. and Daniel W. Hodges, of No. 114 Grand-street. Again, on Friday last he was arrested on charge of selling a policy ticket to John Lebert. Lane gave bail to appear for trial.

Miscellaneous.

A CASE OF CONSCIENCE.

A patent-lever gold watch, belonging to Mr. Mark Banks, of No. 178 Tenth-avenue, was stolen in July last from a place where it had been temporarily left. A reward of $25 was offered for its recovery, but without success. On Saturday last the stolen watch was returned to the owner, through the Post-Office, without note or comment. Verily, there is honor among thieves.

DESPERATE DESPERADO.

[illegible] jumped to the pavement from a second-story window of house No. 200 Pearl-street, on Saturday evening. He was badly injured and conveyed to the City Hospital.

A DEAD BODY.

A man named Charles Smith was fished out of the [illegible]

killed Friday by falling from the first story into the cellar of the new building of Mr. [illegible] in which he was employed. Coroner Connery held an inquest on the body at the City Hospital. A verdict in accordance with the facts was rendered. The deceased was 24 years of age. He lived in Avenue D. Where he leaves a wife.

[illegible]

Mr. Charles Banks fell into an open vault at the corner of Fulton and Nassau streets on Thursday afternoon, and was seriously injured. He was carried to his home, corner of First-avenue and Nineteenth-street.

LONG ISLAND.

☞ On Tuesday evening last, the members of the Brooklyn City Cadets assembled at their Armory, and presented their worthy Captain (B. G. EMMONS,) with a very handsome sword, sash and epaulettes. The presentation address was made by CHARLES N. PEND, and Capt. EMMONS happily responded. After the presentation, the Company marched to DEMICO'S Hotel, in Poplar-street, and partook of a fine supper with their Captain, accompanied by several guests.

Burglary.

On Thursday night, house No. 379 Hudson-avenue, Brooklyn, was entered by burglars, who stole $200 in gold, and a quantity of jewelry and silver ware. No street.

WM. R. BREWSTER has been elected Colonel of the 72d Regiment, (Kings County,) and Dr. FERDINAND MORRIS, Lieutenant-Colonel.

Letter from Capt. Nye concerning the Pacific.

The following letter from Captain NYE, formerly of the steamship Pacific, will be read with interest:

To the Editor of the Courier and Enquirer:

As there seems to be a general impression, that the steamship Pacific was not in good order when I left her, and I often meet inquiries on the subject, I beg leave to state through your columns, that said ship was thoroughly overhauled last Spring, both in hull and engines, and fitted with new wheels. Shortly before I resigned the command, that clever and indefatigable engineer, HORATIO ALLEN, made an ingenious application of a new cut off to the engines, which materially increased the security of their working, and added to the speed of the ship. I considered her in as good if not better condition for the Winter work, than ever before. My further remarks are not intended to apply to the present state of the Pacific, whatever it may be, or to detract from the merits of my successor; they have been delayed till the appointment of Capt. OLIVER ELDRIDGE to the command of the Atlantic, was made public. A report has been widely circulated, by parties interested, that I resigned the command of the Pacific, because I had not the offer of the new ship. I will give a statement of facts showing its utter falsity. And here, let me say, that though my decision was made and expressed far in advance of the appointment to that ship, I should, most assuredly, never have held an inferior command, which, under the circumstances, I should have considered, peculiarly degrading.

In October, 1854, Capt. OLIVER ELDRIDGE was a passenger with me from Liverpool to New-York; during the passage I observed to him, that but for the loss of the Arctic, I would take my family with me in November, and (if he could get the command) I would resign the ship to him in Liverpool, but in consequence of that misfortune I could not think of deserting the Company at present. On arriving at New-York, by my advice, he applied to Mr. COLLINS', agent of the line, (and the proper medium of communication with the Directors,) for the Pacific when I should resign. In conversation with Mr. COLLINS, he expressed to me his entire approbation of Capt. O. ELDRIDGE as my successor. In the Spring following, Capt. ELDRIDGE sailed for London and the Crimea. During the Summer he communicated with me on the subject, and I stated to him my intention to resign in November, also naming certain conditions regarding the disposal of a part of my stock, to which he acceded, saying he would be in Liverpool to return with me in November, on my intended last voyage, not doubting from what had passed between him, Mr. COLLINS and myself, that he would receive the appointment. Immediately on my arrival at New-York, in August, I notified Mr. COLLINS of my intention to resign, after making two voyages more. On my return in October, I learned, to my great surprise, that Capt. ASA ELDRIDGE had been appointed to the Pacific, waiving the condition originally imposed on the commanders of these ships, of taking a certain amount of the stock—thus depriving me of the advantage I should have derived from the appointment I had every reason to suppose would be made. Having ascertained from Mr. COLLINS that this appointment had been made by the Messrs. BROWN, not only without his approval, but contrary to his wishes, I called at their office, and learned they were absent in the country. I afterwards forwarded a request to them that, as there would soon be a vacancy in the Atlantic, they would reconsider their action in this matter and give her to Captain ASA ELDRIDGE, and the Pacific to his brother. This was not noticed, and on my return in November, finding no change in the appointment, I resigned the ship.

The successful results of six and a half years' unremitting exertions in the service of the company, are well known to the public. They might have entitled me to some consideration from the directors, as their giving the Atlantic to Capt. O. ELDRIDGE proved their appreciation of the men. I will now state some of the consequences of their not giving him the Pacific. He was detained in the Crimea till January, and I should have remained in the ship two voyages more. Having made a passage with us, he was known and particularly acceptable to the officers, who would all have retained their situations with him. On the contrary, most of them left with me; as an instance, the Chief Engineer,—who assisted in the construction of the engines, entered the ship on her first voyage as a subordinate, worked his way up, and performed his duties as chief for the last two years to my entire satisfaction,—could not be prevailed upon to remain. The man who filled his place, however competent he may have been, was totally unacquainted, with the ship and engines, and it was his first voyage as Chief Engineer. Not to enlarge, the organization I had completed was broken. With all due deference to the Messrs. BROWN, would it not have been better if they had allowed some weight to the opinion of E. K. COLLINS, a man who has the commercial experience which they lack, and whose judgment and success entitle him to the confidence of the community. He was building ships, comparing and combining models, planning and executing the great enterprise which bears his name, while they were engaged in the drygoods and banking business. It was stated by BROWN, SHIPLEY & Co., in their great but unsuccessful contest with the shipping merchants of Liverpool, in the Winter of 1853 and 1854, that these were their own ships and they would do what they pleased with them. This may appear plausible, and might be true, were there not other parties who have a deep interest in their success. The large amount appropriated from Government, gives every American citizen an indirect claim to their judicious management. Importers, underwriters, travelers, and their friends, the wives and children of the crew (too often overlooked in our estimate of suffering from the loss of a ship) have a deep stake. Every reverse in this line materially affects our whole ocean steam marine, and lessens the confidence in American ships, as I have daily evidence, and is a deep blow to our national pride. It is apparent, from the fearful responsibility which rests on the managers of this line, that they should be men of judgment, experience and unprejudiced minds.

Yours, respectfully,

NEW-YORK, March 6, 1856. E. NYE.

The new Charter for this City, was on Saturday reported to the State Senate from the Select Committee. No action was recommended. The bill to preserve the purity of elections in this City was read a third time, and lost by one vote. The Broadway Railroad was again brought to the attention of the Assembly, a bill being introduced to confirm the proceedings of the Common Council, relative to the Railroad. A motion to lay the bill on the table was lost, and it was finally referred to the Railroad Committee.

The News from Europe.

By the arrival of the Africa, from Liverpool on the morning of the 23d ult., we have three days later European news. The Paris Conference, upon which public attention is altogether centered, was to open formally on the 25th of February, and the fact had been officially announced. Peace prospects, according to outward appearances, continued to look bright, and we are to believe the report that Russia has consented to the dismantling of Nicolaieff, to the truth of which the Paris correspondent of the London Times vouches—the war may really be considered at an end. There are, nevertheless, many who still maintain, and with some show of reason, that the Czar is insincere in his professions, and that the pending negotiations have only been brought about in order to gain time. Within a couple of weeks, perhaps, we shall know how far these assertions are well-founded; but, in the meantime, it is right to speculate on the probable result of the approaching Conferences. One fact alone seems to be established, viz.: that it rests with Russia as to whether there shall be Peace or War.

While the present state of suspense exists, it is interesting that the reproduction of one of the Anti-Russian articles by the Moniteur should have created a great sensation abroad. The article in question, written in reply to some Pro-Russian arguments in the Debats, maintains that a perfect entente exists between France and England as to the terms upon which alone Peace is proffered to Russia, and asserts specifically that the annihilation of Sebastopol will be positively demanded by the Allies, as a sine qua non. From the appearance of this article in the Moniteur it was, of course, generally believed that the sentiments it contained had received the Imperial sanction, and though it was subsequently discovered that the Moniteur had committed a blunder in the reproduction, this fact was not generally credited. We have published elsewhere both the article from the Debats (extracted from the Moniteur), and they will attract attention as indicating that the destruction of Sebastopol, upon which France and England are now said to be united, will be the prominent demand to be urged in the approaching conferences. If Austria, for the sake of Peace, should submit to a condition so obviously humiliating, no other conclusion can be arrived at than that she is utterly prostrated by the war.

We find in the London journals no allusion to the pending difficulties between Great Britain and the United States. When next they undertake to discuss the question, they will in all probability have received the enlistment correspondence recently submitted to Congress, and from it they will learn a few facts of which they have hitherto been profoundly ignorant.

Among the miscellaneous news from England is the announcement that the last British loan has been covered by Baron Rothschild at the minimum price fixed by the Government, viz.: at every £100 in money to receive £111 in the consolidated annuities, which is taking the money price of Consols at 90. The London money market continues stringent, but the Funds have improved ¼ per cent notwithstanding, and closed at 91 per cent. The Liverpool grain market is tending lower, and Cotton a little cheaper, with a fair demand from the trade.

Another Impostor Commenced Fraud in Westbury.

Another case of gigantic fraud has come to light in England, which for the boldness, ingenuity and opulence with which it was conducted, and concerted, suppose might that has [illegible] Above a week before the departure of the last Liverpool packet, a gentleman was found one morning on Hampstead Heath, lying [illegible] with a sharp cut, and a bottle of oil of bitter almonds beside him. He proved to be a Mr. John Sawyer, a member of the British Parliament for the borough of Wigan in Scotland, and Chairman of the London and Canley Bank, the Scottish Railway, and director of various other undertakings of considerable magnitude, both in England and Abroad. This unfortunate termination to a career illustrated with considerable commercial and political success, appeared to have excited, on the first generous impulse, universal sympathy and regret. From being an Irish adventurer without fortune, he had carved his way by dint of energy and labor to a high position, and his wealth and boldness of his speculations seemed to no other of the many daring designers who have figured in the annals of commercial speculation. At one time he is said to have realized a fortune of a million of dollars, though we are informed by gentlemen who knew him well, that his success and characteristics were not such as to lead to a belief that he was a man of great wealth, which, given by other, it was commonly supposed he was. Mr. Sawyer's connection with a large banking house in the South of Ireland, which was almost exclusively under the influence and direction of members of his family, enabled him, it would appear, to procure the large securities required for the agencies under the Courts of Chancery on the other side, and he became receiver of the Portarlington, Kingston, and, indeed, most of the large incumbered estates in Ireland. As agents under the Courts are not required to account for rents received, except at stated periods, and it is possible easily to protract those periods by legal trick, large sums of money were placed in Mr. SADLEIR's hands, with which he commenced his career of speculation. During the first years of his entering on this field, his transactions appear to have been marked by sound judgment and severe integrity. He confined himself exclusively to transactions connected with loans and legitimate banking, and carefully eschewed the many temptations presented to him during the railway mania of 1844, '45 and '46, to venture out of his proper business pursuit. The steadiness and energy for which he soon acquired a reputation, marked him out to the London and County Bank, whose affairs were brought into considerable complication by the failure of their chairman, who had induced, by his influence, the cashing of a multitude of worthless paper, presented by other parties, but virtually his own. Mr. SADLEIR was chosen chairman, and within six months brought the affairs of the bank into so prosperous a condition that the shares rose from six to sixteen. Up to this period his career was illustrated by almost unbroken success. He was general manager of several of the largest estates in Ireland, chairman of a prosperous banking institution, and had also acquired a seat in the House of Representatives. At what period, or from what particular undertaking, his first difficulties arose, it is impossible as yet to surmise. We should, however, conjecture that they were chiefly caused, as in the recent failure of PAUL, STRAHAN & Co., and the great majority of all such cases, by usurious discounts, paid both in interest and law expenses for money to meet too close and complicated engagements. He has been known as the purchaser of large estates in Ireland, but it was always understood they were made on the account of some wealthy relatives and an association of Manchester merchants which he had formed with this object. In foreign railways, in France and Sweden especially, he was a deep speculator and was largely mixed up with the Paris goldsmiths. He had also at one time a large interest in California mines, having dispatched an agent to that country in 1850, who purchased the Carson Creek and some other supposed gold deposits. None of these properties were at any time, however, so depreciated as to account for such a giant defalcation as that of one million of pounds, the securities for which are stated to be all fraudulent and forged. It has been ascertained beyond all question, as stated, that he forged no fewer than [illegible] Railway scrip, of all each, on which large sums of money were raised, but the precise amount is not yet known. The most daring act of any is, however, represented to be the forgery of several deeds of purchase of property under the Irish Encumbered Estates' Court. These documents are obliged to carry the signature of three Commissioners, two Registers, the Chief Clerks and various Solicitors, all of which are said to have been executed with such perfection as to defy the detection of the most experienced sage. Other unfortunate circumstances of a private and less extensive character appear also to have come to light, and of course the feeling of sympathy and sorrow, at first entertained, has changed into a sentiment of far different character.

Mr. SADLEIR appears to have for some time contemplated self-destruction. Among his papers was found a copy of Taylor on Poisoning, with the description of that particular potion with which he committed suicide specially marked; but circumstances having occurred which made a discovery imminent, precipitated the event. He left behind him a letter admitting his crimes, and declaring they were his, alone and unaided.

On Mr. SADLEIR's brief political career it is almost unnecessary to touch. He rose but for a short time on the stormy surface of Irish politics—political exclusive being always secondary to commercial, with him. He, however, for a short time played rather a prominent part upon that angry stage, and was a Lord of the Treasury for a few months under the Coalition Government. He has scarcely taken any part for the past few years either in the debates in the House of Commons or agitations outside, and his name, once a watchword with one large section of Irish politicians, and an object of bitter execration to another, had been built by friends and enemies alonge unmentioned and forgot.

The sudden recession of this case on the disclosures in the Hudson and Eastern Counties' railway affairs, and the frauds of PAUL, STRAHAN & Co., exhibiting as they all do, the frightful corruption which is preying on the Commercial heart, have naturally unhinged throughout England a deep distrust and anxiety. In many particulars this case resembles that unfortunate one, which occurred some 16 months since in our own City, and which has brought such sorrow and suffering to so many of our own community. It appears likely in England to be productive of similar misery-creating results, as the unfortunate gentleman in a letter previous to his suicide declared "that sooner than witness the ruin he had caused, he had resolved to die." He would, indeed, instead, from the feelings the first intelligence of the case awakened, and from the love and respect in which he was held by many relatives and friends, to have been a man of gentle, kindly nature. So were FAUCHERAUD, STEVENSON and ROBERT SCHUYLER; and among the commercial community of England the question is being eagerly asked, how much of the temptation to weak human nature for the commission of such crimes is attributable to the encouraging or lenient manner of discussion and characteristics to look other than [illegible] property, which in most local courts commanded a commission to the under-guarded contact of one strong, bold man? This is a question which we should equally apply. Mr. SAWYER, himself, had been some years since more than once heard to say, "That the great difficulty with the temptations which English over-confidence threw in a man's way was not to be dishonest."

The Missions of the American Board.

A theological controversy, bearing upon the relations of the American Board to the Missionary enterprises in India, occupied several days of the past week at Albany. A special meeting of the Board was called to meet in that city, for the purpose of receiving and considering the Report of the Deputation which was sent out to investigate the condition of the mission field. The questions at issue related to the expediency of affording instruction in the English language to the native population, and the comparative value of a system of school education or of itinerant preaching. These were the principal points in controversy, and to their consideration was brought a remarkable array of lay and clerical talent. The conduct of the Deputation itself was canvassed with much warmth of feeling, but the final conclusions of the meeting were pacific, so that harmony and good fellowship grew out of the collisions of opposing parties.

The opportunity for the exercise of Christian effort in India is unlimited. Many hundreds of missionaries are scattered over the land, representing the Anglican Church, the Established and Free Churches of Scotland, the American Board, and other agencies, to omit all mention of the movements of the Roman Catholics, who appear ready to profit by the dissensions of Protestant brethren. The proportion of American enterprise in the field to European effort is stated at one-sixth of the whole, while the American Board makes an exhibit of only one-eleventh part of the general aggregate. Yet with this disproportionate number of laborers, the missions of the Board have been effective. Dr. POOR has done a noble work in Ceylon, as Dr. DUFF is doing in Calcutta; the former representing the American Board, and the latter the Free Church of Scotland;—and both have accomplished their end in great measure through the agency of the school. Upon this point turns the controversy. The Board at Boston conceived the idea that schools in which the native children were taught the English language, were taught by heathen parents, mainly because in them their children could be qualified to enter Government service, and that the necessary consequence of this system of tuition was, not so much to furnish instruction in Christian truth as to fit children for clerkships under the patronage of the English. It is for the purpose of correcting this alleged evil that the Board, through its Deputation, has so strongly recommended the abolition of the Schools in India and the establishment of a system of oral preaching in the towns and villages of the country.

The Deputation consisted of Rev. RUFUS ANDERSON, Senior Secretary of the American Board; and Rev. AUGUSTUS C. THOMPSON, of Roxbury, Mass., a member of the Prudential Committee. These gentlemen were commissioned in April, 1854, to visit the Missions of the Board in India, and to examine with care the conduct of those enterprises. They sailed from Boston in the following August, were absent a year and a half, and returned to lay the results of their labors before the full Board, at this special meeting, which was called for the purpose of receiving them. A condensation of the report has been published in our columns. The Deputation appear to have explored with great thoroughness the entire missionary field occupied by the Board, visited Ceylon, Madras, and all prominent stations; held conferences with the missionaries, examined the school systems, and passed judgment in favor of oral preaching. Their report is very voluminous, and, aside from the opinions it expresses, furnishes a vast mass of useful information which will interest the Christian public, upon whose liberality the Boards relies for the accomplishment of its work. The report recommends that English be excluded from the native schools, and that oral preaching take the place of daily instruction; it does not show that the Deputation exercised plenipotentiary powers, but rather that their work was wholly one of consultation and comparison of views. The opposition which sprang up at the meeting found its origin in a belief that these assumptions were unfounded in fact, that the Deputation did exert executive power, and that definite instructions to that effect were given them by the Prudential Committee of the Board. The inevitable result of this diversity of sentiment was the formation of two distinct parties at Albany; one representing the views of the Prudential Committee, and the other opposing an alleged or implied assumption of power. Upon this point opinions remain divided. The reference of the whole question, however, to a Committee which is acknowledged to be very able, and abundantly qualified, by numbers and character, for the decision of the knotty points, has quelled the dissension for the present. The report of that Committee will be presented at the annual meeting of the Board next Fall; so that an interval of six months is afforded for comparison of views and adjustment of all questions in dispute.

The discussions at Albany were characterized by earnestness and ability. The grounds in dispute were reviewed very thoroughly, and the proceedings ended harmoniously, a fact which was perhaps owing to the postponement of a final decision upon the acts of the Deputation.

The question lies in a nutshell. Shall schools be encouraged on mission ground? Are they efficient Christian help? Are the pupils converted? Do the Missionaries labor with effect? Or, are the schools useless except as nurseries of commercial enterprise, and is oral preaching by itinerating Missionaries the only effective means for the conversion of the heathen? From the tenor of the debates it is clear that the practical set of the current among friends and supporters of the American Board, opposes the abolition of the school system, while at the same time the agency of missionary exhortation is accepted as an indispensable auxiliary. The friends of Missions in this country will watch with much interest the progress of the controversy.

How to Relieve Broadway.

Broadway certainly demands relief. No plan hitherto suggested has at all palliated its chronic strangulation. The opening of thoroughfares on either side, and at a distance from it—as the Bowery to Franklin-square, or Sixth-avenue to Greenwich-street—will barely serve to draw off an amount of travel equal to the yearly increase. The capital of travel with which the intermediate channel is over stocked, will remain about the same. The relief must be topical; must be applied immediately to the seat of congestion; must be of such nature as to compel property-holders on the one hand, and the drivers of carts, stages, and private vehicles on the other, to terms of accommodation. For if the truth should ever be brought to light, we fancy much of the responsibility for the existing evil will be found divisible between these two classes. It is the interest of the Broadway shopkeeper to maintain the tide of transit perpetually at flood. He has been found a sturdy dissenter from every plan promising to divert the travel elsewhere. The frequently proposed opening of Mercer and Crosby streets through, and the confinement of the stages to those avenues has found no sympathy on Broadway. Equally unpalatable has been the plan of withholding licenses from some of the stage lines unless they will consent to travel the side streets. For similar reasons, the stage companies insist on crowding Broadway. All the horrors of the passage for the last five weeks have been insufficient to drive them away. No action, therefore, that is not compulsory, can induce these gentlemen who live upon and out of the thronged street, to sacrifice their little perquisites to the public welfare.

What shall therefore be done? Unless the public is content to part the eastern and western sides of the City, beyond possibility of intercourse between them, some plan very different from any yet proposed must be adopted. Unless the public is willing to see the extreme confusion and inconvenience produced by the Empire Race converted from a momentary exception into an unalterable rule, it cannot consent to allow Broadway to remain as it is. The antagonism to the extension of Crosby and Mercer streets is too serious to be overcome. If then there is to be no Railroad, and no side outlets for the vehicles, what relief is possible? But one—Broadway must be made broader; it must be widened.

We have no idea of knocking down any of those superb fronts with which the street is now beautified. It is not in our minds to work the same radical revolutions on Broadway that have brought out several of the side streets better and wider than now. But the carriageway must be widened, and it can only be done at the expense of the sidewalk; and the sidewalk must recover the lost width at the expense of the buildings behind it. It must be at the cost of the cellar steps, stone stoops, iron railings, projecting signs, protuberant windows, awning posts, hydrants, lamp posts, that now deduct from the pavement on either side full six feet of width, and which, thrown into the middle, would add twelve feet to the wagon track. It is quite possible to have a fine and showy store without any of these inconvenient projections into the footway. Were it not invidious we could point to several of the largest establishments on the street, whose windows are not bowed, whose cellars are only open at the rear, or from the inside, and which thrust out no stumbling-block in the shape of a door-step to incommode the pedestrian. It is quite possible to leave the whole space between wall and curb at the service of the public. Entrances, both upward and downward, may and ought to be made at the expense of the building and not of the street; signs and windows need not project, at least below the second floor; curtain-irons and lamps may be attached to the walls, hydrants may be removed around corners into the lateral streets. With this sacrifice, trifling as it is, Broadway may gain room for the passage of two more lines of vehicles; will cease to be jammed and motionless for hours, as it has been repeatedly of late, and may be crossed by the foot-passenger with some probabilities of safety in his favor. With it the traffic of the street may be retained and increased indefinitely, and the clamor for relief silenced. Without it, some means will and should be devised forthwith to force travel into other avenues, or to try desperately any experiment, even a railroad, that offers the possibility of improvement. Nothing would add more decidedly to the beauty of Broadway than the removal of these sidewalk obstacles. It would add equally to its convenience, and that its morals must be vastly ameliorated no listener to the prevalent blasphemy of drivers and policemen when anestrums occur need be assured.

Will the property-holders of Broadway act voluntarily upon this suggestion? Will they submit cheerfully if the proper legislation be obtained enforcing the change? Or will they retain these architectural impertinences at the expense of trade, convenience, and the public comfort. Let us see.

News from Bermuda—The American Ship "Splendid" at St. George's.

By the arrival of the fast Marmion, from Bermuda, we have files of the Royal Gazette to the 20th of February. In its issue of that date the Gazette mentions that the American ship Splendid, (about which some anxiety has been felt in this City,) when 75 days out from Havre, bound to New-York, had put into St. George's, leaking badly, and that her cargo would have to be discharged. The weather in Bermuda had been very changeable, with occasional violent north-westers. There had been frequent falls of hail, but the crops, as far as known, were uninjured.

A Long Train.

The mail train on the Hudson River Railroad which left Albany on Saturday, at 7½ A. M., consisted of 11 passenger and 1 baggage car. The mail brought down was the largest that ever left Albany at one time.

Academy of Music.—The Italian Opera Company have succeeded in a fashionable manner after Saturday evenings in the East and West. Mr. FARRAR, the Manager, announces two performances previous to the closing of the present campaign. To-night we are to have the first consisting of the "Trovatore" with Miss ADELAIDE PHILLIPS of Boston (Academy of Music, for instance, of this city) will be sufficient to fill the house. The cast is the same as last season. We are glad to observe that the prices have been reduced to a popular standard.

BURTON'S THEATRE.—The comedy of "Helping Hands" will be the first piece here to-night, after which, for the first time, the fairy extravaganza of "Fortunio." New scenery, dresses, &c., have been prepared for this conviviality, and a very strong cast has been made.

WALLACK'S THEATRE.—The "Game of Life" has been revived here with success, and it is on the bills for to-night, together with the farce of the "Boarding School."

BROADWAY THEATRE.—"Horne the Hunter" has retired into private life, and is succeeded to-night by the famous spectacle piece called the "Cataract of the Ganges." This house drama created a sensation when it was produced here some two years since. Considering the additional facilities now enjoyed by the Broadway, it cannot fail of winning a similar reception.

LAURA KEENE'S VARIETIES.—The successful comedy of "Two Loves and a Life" will be repeated to-night, together with the elegant, agreeable, and funny extravaganza called "Novelty."

NATIONAL THEATRE.—A very attractive bill is offered here to-night, containing three pieces, "The Arabian Nights," the "Frisky Cobbler," and the "Silver Knife." To-morrow evening Miss HARDAWAY takes her benefit, an intimation that will most surely fill the house.

BARNUM'S MUSEUM.—This afternoon the drama of the "Dumb Man of Manchester." This evening the new romantic drama "The Foundling of the Forest."

BUCKLEY'S SERENADERS, No. 539 Broadway. This admirable band of Minstrels still presents the most attractive programmes, freighted with novelties and comicalities. A local extravaganza, called "The Court of King Iceberg," will be given to-night in addition to the usual minstrelsy.

DUSSELDORFF GALLERY.—This splendid collection of modern paintings is still on exhibition, and should be seen by every lover of art.

THE EUDORA MYSTERY.

Possible Discovery of the Captain's Body.

Saturday afternoon, while several boys were at play near the foot of North Second-street, Eastern District of Brooklyn, they discovered a sack in the water and immediately gave information to the Police of the fact. The sack was taken from the water and found to contain the remains of a man in a partially decomposed state. Coroner HARTOGS, having been notified, caused the body to be removed to the First Ward Station-house, on South Second-street. During the afternoon several persons viewed the body who were acquainted with Capt. PALMER, of the schooner Eudora Imogene, supposed to have been murdered before the sinking of that vessel near City Island, last November, and declare that they believe the body to be that of the missing captain.

The body has been shockingly mutilated, and is doubtful if it can ever be identified. On the right side of the neck is a gash some two and a half inches in length, apparently made with a sharp instrument, and severing the carotid artery. This is tied by a large piece of twine just below the wound. There is an appearance of a wound on the left side of the head about two inches above and a little forward of the ear. The body has evidently been in a fire; the legs and hands particularly have this appearance. When taken from the sack the body was pressed into the smallest possible compass, and in that position tied with strips of coarse cotton cloth, two inches wide and some eight feet in length. The arms were bent at the elbows, and hands tied together to the neck. The knees were drawn near. And [illegible] and there confined.

The face is somewhat shrivelled and there is no hair upon the head. Under the chin on the left side is a bunch of hair, apparently once black, and a few straggling hairs are visible on the left side of the face.

If Captain PALMER was six feet high, as has been stated, this certainly cannot be his body, and does not measure that now. It is the body of a man of small limbs, very slim. The hands and feet are particularly small and well formed; still it is possible that whatever caused the partially roasted appearance may have shrivelled these parts so as to make them appear smaller than when in life. The sack in which the body was encased is made of coarse grass cloth, and the body was covered with what appears to be coal-flakes. One end of the sack was open when found, and it is probable that when the body was placed therein it was filled with coal to sink it, and the action of the water and coal caused the sack to give way, and, being relieved of most of the coal, floated to the top. A monkey-jacket lined with blue flannel and bound with binding of the same color, and a piece of India rubber cloth, were also found in the sack.

Coroner HARTOGS carried the body to be washed and straightened yesterday, and a close examination was made to find some mark by which to identify it, but without success. To-day Drs. SEMAYNE and ENGLEBERTSON will hold a post-mortem examination, and on Tuesday Coroner HARTOGS will hold an inquest. As some have supposed the body to be that of the missing Captain PALMER, several persons most likely to identify his remains, will be summoned to testify.

Our readers must remember what mystery shrouded the Eudora matter. The sinking of the schooner, the arrest of the negro, the suspicions of the public, during the two weeks that elapsed before the vessel was raised, the discovery of the blood-stained clothes of the captain and mate, all the circumstances that surrounded the terrible mystery, and which pointed, with a strong index finger, to the negro cook, GEORGE WILSON, as the guilty party, do not need to be republished. The sensation which they created had not subsided when it was known, about a month ago, that the negro had been removed from the prison of Westchester County, at White Plains, where he was first taken, to the Tombs, in this City, and that his trial in the United States Circuit Court was determined upon by Mr. McKEON, the United States District Attorney. Our well-known citizen, Capt. DE GROOT, engaged Mr. BRADLEY to defend him—whether from any strong conviction of his innocence, or from a determination to see simple justice done, we know not.

The negro was indicted under the Admiralty act of 1804, which made the scuttling of a vessel on the high seas, by any person not the owner thereof, a crime punishable with death. The body, either of the captain or the mate, not having been discovered, after the most vigilant search, the negro could not be indicted for murder. There was a doubt in reference to the indictment for scuttling, whether the Admiralty Act would apply. The schooner Eurodo was at anchor in Long Island Sound when the captain and mate so mysteriously disappeared. His counsel argued that the United States Circuit Court had no jurisdiction in the matter, the vessel not being on the high seas, in the ordinary construction of the act. The Judges (SHARON and BEVEE) took time to consider, and, on Friday last, decided in favor of the prisoner, as follows:

The United States vs. George Wilson.—The decision of the Court on the demurrer to the indictment in this case was this morning delivered by Judge BEVEE.

The prisoner, as will be remembered, was the cook of the Schooner Eudora Imogene, whose captain and mate he disappeared or have murdered, and which was sunk by him. For this latter offence he was indicted under the Act of Congress of March 30, 1825, which vessels thereby pirates, and being an owner, who shall on the high seas wrongfully and corruptly cast away, burn or otherwise destroy any vessel to which he belongs, being the property of any citizen of the United States, shall suffer death. The prisoner demurred to the indictment, thus admitting the fact charged. It is insisted by the United States that the vessel was destroyed at a point between City Island and Hart Island in the East River, within the territorial limits of the County of Westchester and town of Pelham, and thus within the jurisdiction of the State of New-York.

The question raised by the demurrer is whether the place where the act was done is within the criminal jurisdiction of the Court.

Held by the Court, that it is assumed, as a notorious geographical fact, that the breadth of water there is not more than two miles.

That the civil jurisdiction of the United States Courts, within the bays, inlets and harbors along the coast and its navigable rivers.

MEDICAL.

PRIVATE CONSULTATIONS.

DR. WATSON continues his practice in a private course of cases, in which he has treated more than twenty thousand cases, and not one failure of a cure. The cause of failure arises, not in the skill of the physician, but in the cases not being cured by other doctors. Dr. WATSON feels bound to state that, in consequence of cases having been injured by improper treatment, and consequently invited to call in the last stage, he thinks he no doubt has caused many to suffer.
W. WATSON, M.D.,
Sixty years practice in the Lock Hospital: Author of "The Organs and Guide," numerous cases. 37 Chatham-st., 29 Walker-st., fourth door west of Broadway.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.—Dr. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pasture herbs, a remedy that cures every kind of humor, from the worst scrofula down to a common pimple.

He has tried it in over 1,500 cases, and never failed, except in two cases, both thunder humor. He has now in his possession over 250 certificates of its virtue, all within 20 miles of Boston.

Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth.

One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.

Two to three bottles will clear the system of boils.

Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth or stomach.

Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of scrofulas.

One to two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.

Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the eyes and blotches among the hair.

Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corrupt and running ulcers.

One bottle will cure scaly eruption of the skin.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of ringworm.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.

Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the salt rheum.

Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.

Besides, I peddled over a thousand bottles of this in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effects of it in every case. So sure as water will extinguish fire, so sure will this cure humor. I never sold a bottle of it but that sold another; after a trial, it always speaks for itself. There were things about this herb that appear to me surprising: first, that it grows in our pastures, in some places quite plentiful, and yet its value has never been known until I discovered it in 1849; second, that it should cure all kinds of humor.

In order to give some idea of the sudden rise and great popularity of the discovery, I will state that in April, 1855, I peddled it, and sold about six bottles per day. In April, 1856, I sold over a thousand bottles per day.

No matter how far off, never mind—get the best you get, and enough of it.

Fire and Loss of Life.

At 10¾ o'clock Friday night a fire broke out in a [illegible] store in Fifteenth-street, one door from Avenue A. The rear hall door having been left open, the fire rapidly communicated to a grocery and tenement on the northeast corner of Avenue A and Fifteenth-street, which was soon enveloped in flames. A German woman named Dinn attempted to escape from the tenement by getting out of a rear third-story window to the shed beneath, and when the firemen succeeded in getting a hose-pipe upon the shed they discovered that Mrs. Dinn had her child in her arms, and was endeavoring to protect it on her left side. Both mother and child were finally taken from the shed by Assistant-Engineer Kreganan, and removed to a house near by, when the child was found to be dead from suffocation. The mother was shockingly burned. She was removed to Bellevue Hospital. Some hopes are entertained of her recovery. Assistant-Engineer Kreganan was badly burned in his brave efforts to rescue the mother and child from their perilous position.

[illegible], the above melancholy occurrence, says: While the woman was lying in the dwelling-house opposite, the party living there ordered the woman and child to be immediately removed, saying they were afraid the woman would die in the house. They also refused to allow us to take the cot and bedding on which the woman was lying for the purpose of conveying her to the Hospital, and it was not until I promised to pay for anything that might be lost that they consented to the cot being used for such purpose. I never before saw such heartless [illegible].

Mrs. Dinn would have escaped in safety by the [illegible] and she not been frightened.

FIRE IN GRAND-STREET.

About 10 o'clock Thursday evening, a fire was discovered in the dry goods store of R. WAMSLEY in Grand-street, but before it could be extinguished the stock was damaged some $2,000, and the building $500. The loss on stock is covered by an insurance of $1,000 in the Putnam, and $1,000 in the Pacific Insurance Companies.

Mrs. DANSONVILLE, who lived in one of the upper stories, had her furniture damaged about $100. The fire is supposed to have been lighted by an incendiary.

FIRE IN MONROE-STREET.

About 11 o'clock Friday night a fire broke out in a [illegible] House in Monroe-street, near Rutledge-street, but was soon put out. The damage done was not [illegible].

FIRE IN WASHINGTON-STREET.

About 10 o'clock Sunday morning a fire broke out in the house of John VAN BUREN, No. 378 Washington-street, and spread rapidly, owing to the prevailing high wind. Mr. VAN BUREN's stable and [illegible] were also burning in it when it was destroyed, and the fire had spread to a [illegible] brick dwelling near by was [illegible] Two horses were burned to death in the stable, and several others were rescued with great difficulty. The horses belonged to different parties. The entire loss is not large.

Broadway to be Cleansed.

The bids for cleaning Broadway from the Astor-[illegible], were read at noon on Saturday in the presence of the Mayor and Comptroller and a number of spectators. The contract was awarded to William Bates, he being the lowest bidder. The following is a list of the bids:

[illegible]	[illegible]	Sinclair Mere	$1,[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	William Baird	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	John Duke	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	Peter Connolly	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	Charles Van Tine	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	Ed win Bowles	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	John P. Cumming	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	Adam B. Morrell	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible] Robinson	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	F. W. Robinson	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	R. R. Cutler	[illegible]

[illegible] to be cleaned in less time than a mile and a half, in the terms of the contract the work must be completed before the hours of 6 P. M. and 6 A. M., and before the 20th inst. All the dirt from Broadway and Fifth-street must be dumped [illegible], and the balance in the Hudson-river, or on Gansevoort-street. The Street Commissioner and the Commissioner of Streets and Lamps, Mr. Valentine and Mr. Kelsey, were invited to be present at the opening of the bids, but the latter, indeed, has protested against them all.

During the operation of this contract, carts will be permitted, after 6 o'clock, P. M., to pass through Broadway. Bear this in mind, ladies and belated [illegible].

Museum of the Lungs—Notice.

Dr. [illegible] Hewson begs to inform his patients and the public that he has opened an establishment for the professional change of Dr. F. [illegible], for the special treatment of diseases of the lungs.

Dr. Hewson is a member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, and has enjoyed, both in that city and New-York, long and great experience in the treatment of pulmonary affections.

Dr. Hewson would also state for the information of his patients residing in Baltimore and Washington that Dr. Jos. Bonaparte Wilkinson will hereafter be associated with the Baltimore office.

These arrangements have been rendered necessary by the growth of the practice in Philadelphia and Baltimore, and by the retirement of Dr. JAMES HEWSON in consequence of ill health. Patients in those cities will, in future, enjoy not only all the advantages of Dr. HEWSON's advice, but the additional benefit of the personal care and supervision of an skilled and accomplished resident physician.

In the Stethoscope and Journal of Disease of the Chest for February an extended explanation of Dr. HEWSON's views and treatment will be found, with much additional information, which should be read by every one predisposed to or suffering from any affection of the throat or lungs. The Stethoscope can be procured of the publishers, Messrs. SHERMAN & CO., Astor House. Persons residing at a distance, who are prevented by the state of their health, the weather, or other considerations from visiting the City for advice, can be prescribed for by letter. In such cases, it is necessary that the patient should carefully describe his present symptoms and the past history of his disease. To render such description easy, there is a list of questions has been prepared, which will be sent, with a specimen copy of the Stethoscope, on application to either of the following addresses:

NEW-YORK—Dr. HENRY HEWSON, No. 502 Broadway.

PHILADELPHIA—Dr. F. MEWSON, No. 802 Walnut-street.

BALTIMORE—Dr. J. B. WILKINSON, No. 69 North Charles-street.

Mrs. Dr. HEWSON may be consulted personally at her residence, from 9 A. M. to 4 P. M., daily.

New-York, March 5th, 1856.

TAYLOR'S INTERNATIONAL HOTEL AND SALOONS, BROADWAY.—To the ladies and gentlemen who have hitherto so liberally bestowed their patronage upon this establishment the proprietor tenders his sincere thanks. The saloons are now open to the public in a new dress, affording a place of resort unsurpassed in the world. Numerous rare and beautiful improvements have been effected during the past Winter season. The fresco paintings, and gilded and ornamental work, have been embellished and finally decorated by eminent artists, from the establishment of Messrs. HERMAN & LEWIS. An entirely new arrangement of gas fixtures has been constructed, making altogether more than six hundred lights. A large collection of valuable oil-paintings adorn the saloons; they are original, by FERRALL. The bill of fare in the saloons occupies thirty-two large pages and catalogues—over five hundred dishes. Near the western window, in the grand saloon, dinner and supper parties will observe a private table, beautifully adorned. There is also in the fountain saloon a table to accommodate parties of forty; and altogether, the saloons will seat at one time 1,200 persons—affording to the public an opportunity to obtain meals at all reasonable hours, and luxuries in profusion. The proprietor of almost every nation is here at this establishment by the proprietor, assisted by male and female waiters. Ladies and gentlemen and families will find in this hotel [illegible] a comfortable which makes it equal, if not, we say, superior to any other in the City for purposes any [illegible] in the City of New-York.

CAUTION TO WEAKLY [illegible].

Since the introduction of Schenck's Atmospheric Schnapps into the United States, a number of spurious [illegible] in New-York, Boston and Philadelphia, have been manufactured, putting up mixed and poisonous gin, in green cases and jugs, and to be palmed off upon the unwary for my genuine Schnapps. I have directed my agents to institute legal proceedings against all persons whom they may ascertain to be engaged in this most atrocious system of deception, and call on the Press and the public to aid them in their efforts to remedy so great an evil.

I wish the public to understand the Schnapps is not sold by the gallon or pipe. It is only sold in quart and pint bottles, in cases of one dozen quarts, and two dozen pints, each bottle enveloped in yellow paper, with my name on the bottle, cork, and a fac simile of my signature on the label.

For sale by all the wholesale druggists and grocers in the City. UNDERHO WOLFE,

Sole Importer and Manufacturer,

Nos. 18, 20 and 22 Beaver-street, New-York.

Mr. D. H. Haight and the Broadway Railroad. To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

The statement of Mr. D. H. HAIGHT, of the St. Nicholas Hotel, has a right of course to summon New-Yorkers to the rescue as often as his interests, fancied or real, requires their aid, but he has no right to misrepresent others. It is not true that I have boasted that two-thirds of the members of the Legislature have been secured to vote for a Broadway Railroad. I have neither boasted nor intimated any such thing. The Broadway Railroad application rests wholly upon its merits and its necessities. The argument in its favor is apparent to all who fall, either in vehicles or as pedestrians, into the stream of human life that pushes through that great thoroughfare. The question has been submitted to the members of the Legislature to be decided according to their sense of usefulness. It is expected to encounter the hostility of purse-proud and arrogant individuals who admit that, with a grant of which they were the proprietors, a Broadway Railroad would be much less objectionable.

☞ Don't wait until the last day. What can be done to-day should not be deferred until to-morrow. We notice by our advertising columns Messrs. RUSSELL & DIMON'S intention of closing their sales on Thursday next. The actual loss on their stock since the commencement of these sales must be immense. The prices marked in plain figures must convince the most indifferent judge of Dry Goods of the enormous sacrifice submitted to in order to dispose of this stock. During the four remaining days, some $60,000 worth of rich Dress and Housekeepers' Goods may be obtained at one-half their intrinsic value. What an opportunity for purchasers!

THE LATE DAMAGED SILKS.—By reference to our advertising columns our lady readers will notice the sale of those damaged silks commences this morning at CHAS. HEARD & Co.'s, No. 301 Grand-street. The great interest manifested by our dry goods merchants at the Underwriter's auction sales proves their great importance. We also notice another important feature in these sales: jobbers and those in the trade have no advantage over those who purchase a single dress. Go early if you wish a chance.

MONDAY, March 10—4 P. M.

The Foreign Money and Market accounts by the steamer Africa, at this port from Liverpool Feb. 23, are to the effect that the English Funds are ¼ ⅌ cent higher; money in quick demand in London; the new loan of $40,000,000 taken by ROTHSCHILD at a rate equal to 80 ⅌ cent for Consols to be paid for in the months of March and April; the Liverpool Cotton market a fraction easier with a fair trade demand, and Breadstuffs selling at rather improved figures. There is nothing new in American Stocks, and little or nothing said in the English press about the political relations between the two countries. In Paris, the Funds were partially influenced by the appearance in the official journal of an article on the Eastern question of a less pacific temper than was looked for on the eve of the assembling of the congress of the great Powers. But the effect was but temporary; while in London, the taking of the new loan at a high figure, and the very large and excessive list of subscribers to it through ROTHSCHILD, together with the disposition of the Stock Exchange to take Consols freely at fall rates against a stringent market for money, were all indicative of a strong and general confidence in peace. The Bank of England statement shows a loss of $405,000 in bullion. The Bank of France has resumed 90-day discounts, and some of the financial reports from Paris speak of the early prospect of a decline in the rate of interest. The manufacturing accounts from both England and France are encouraging; particularly as to the Silk trade in Lyons, where heavy orders for the United States were being executed. The export trade returns of Great Britain for the month of December, just officially published, show a remarkable degree of activity for a state of war, the aggregate value for the month being $44,075,000, against $36,720,000 for the corresponding month in 1855. The export of Cotton fabrics alone amounted to $15,240,000, against $10,358,000 in December, 1855—an increase of nearly 50 per cent. The metal, linen and woolen trade also show a liberal increase.

The English Chancellor of the Exchequer stated to the House of Commons, on the 22d of Feb., that the cost of the war, for twenty months, was $217,826,000. He also stated that the sum of one hundred millions of dollars, or £20,000,000 sterling, would be wanted in the course of the present year by way of extraordinary loans, and having pointed out that the resources of the country remained unimpaired, moved the authorization of the sum of $25,000,000, being part of the loan that day taken by the ROTHSCHILDS. The estimates of the Chancellor, last Spring, were, in means, including the loan of $80,000,000 and exchequer bills, $15,000,000, the sum of $481,595,000. The expenditure $440,420,000. The deficiency in these figures is ascertained to be about $17,800,000. The defalcation of Mr. JOHN SADLEIR, Member of Parliament, and Chairman of the London County Bank, and Swedish Railway Company, was creating considerable excitement, and some embarrassment in financial circles. The aggregate fraud is double the famous Schuyler defalcation in this City, or about five millions of dollars, of which $1,250,000 is by way of overissue of the shares and obligations of the Swedish Railway. A letter appears in the money column of the London Times, from Mr. CYRUS W. FIELD, of this City, on behalf of the American and Transatlantic Submarine Telegraph Company, complaining of the manner in which his Company have been treated by the Underwriters at LLOYD'S, in reference to the loss of the cable, off the northeastern coast, last Summer. The cable was insured in London, at the ample premium of 4 ⅌ cent., for $25,000, on 74 miles of cable, on the bark Sarah L. Bryant, for Newfoundland, "the same to be laid down between Newfoundland and Breton Island and Nova Scotia." The circumstances under which 44 miles of the cable were lost, in a storm, while being laid down, are of course remembered. The high premium paid was clearly intended to cover this risk, and application was made, through GEORGE PEABODY & Co., for indemnity. Mr. FIELD adds:

In consequence of the evasive manner, however, in which they met this application, I, as one of the directors, and on behalf of our company, came to England to obtain payment of the policy. Like our agents, I also met with evasion from the underwriters—a principal one actually declining an interview with me, and another giving the insulting reply, "that there was no loss; the cable being on the bottom of the sea, just where you wish to put it." I was therefore obliged to ask Messrs. FRESHFIELD (our legal advisers) to put themselves in communication with the lawyer of the underwriters, and offer to settle the matter, either by reference to arbitration or according to any one of the following propositions: "1. The underwriters to lay down a perfect cable between Cape Ray [illegible] give the underwriters the benefit of their assistance in doing what can be done towards recovery of the cable; or, 3, the underwriters to pay a total loss on 44 miles of cable actually lost, and the assured to take the remaining 30 miles of cable as it lies at Sydney at a valuation, in ascertaining which all the circumstances must be taken into consideration; or, 4, the underwriters to pay total loss on 44 miles, the assured to order that length and send it out, and the underwriters to pay all expenses attendant upon the sending out, joining, repairing and laying down the cable, (if feasible,) including all risk of failure and consequent necessity of supplying, joining and laying down a perfect cable.

After several postponements in giving a promised answer, these propositions were declined. As we considered that the assured had been trifled with, I requested the Messrs. FRESHFIELD to inform the lawyer of the underwriters that they would commence legal proceedings at once, but still be open to an amicable arrangement. After this an opportunity occurred, in ordering a new cable, to dispose of the sections of old cable, which, under all the circumstances, would have been favorable to the underwriters, and of which we informed their attorney, but who (on behalf of his clients) declined availing himself of the opportunity, and added, that "they were advised that they the assured's duty was to join that part of the cable already laid down to the part saved, and thus complete the line." We then informed them that this was wholly impracticable, and that, as every means had been used to assist the underwriters in decreasing their loss, there was now no course open to the assured, without seriously injuring their undertaking, but to order an entire new cable, which I have done.

In regard to American Stocks in London, Mr. E. F. SATTERTHWAITE writes by this steamer:

"There has not been much activity in American Securities during the past week, the attention of all parties having been diverted to the terms of, and taking of, the Loan for 40,000,000, and the funding of 29,000,000 of Exchequer Bills. The Loan and funding has to-day been adjudicated at £111 2s. 2d. Stock for each £100 money, being at the rate of 80 ⅌ cent., which is considered a high price for the Government to realize, indicative of confidence in the restoration of peace, and in our internal resources. Less anxiety is felt about the American dispute, but all parties connected with the financial and commercial interests regard the agitation as a perfect nuisance, and would rejoice to see it settled."

The Foreign Trade returns for the past week at the port of New-York present an import, including the Dry Goods table in our last paper, of $4,728,658 against $2,399,282 the corresponding week in 1855, and $4,918,436 the year before. The feature of this large business is, that $2,619,966 of the aggregate was in Silk Goods. The Exports of Domestic Produce and Miscellaneous Goods for the week, amounted to $1,650,321, against $1,882,899 same week last year. Owing to an advance of ¼ ⅌ cent. in Foreign bills, and the limited offering of transient-made Exchange on England and France, the Export of Specie, for the week, including $404,000 by the Havre steamer Arago on Saturday, amounted to $1,204,746, against $1,488,490 the same week in March, 1855. The official monthly returns of trade at New-York, from 1st July, 1855, the beginning of the current fiscal or Treasury year, to the 1st March, inst, show that the Import of Foreign Merchandise amounted to.....$121,000,000
First week in March, as above.....4,728,658
Total to date.....$125,728,658
Against same time last year.....116,148,832
Increase about 11 ⅌ cent.....$12,575,436

From July 1, 1855, to March 1, 1856, the official monthly returns of the Export of Domestic Produce, and the reexport of Miscellaneous Foreign Goods amounted to.....$51,028,000
First week in March.....1,650,321
Total to date.....$52,678,321
Against same time last year.....42,478,890
Increase to date.....$10,204,428

During the same there was a Specie Export from New-York of.....$11,851,000
First week in March.....1,204,746
Total to date.....$13,055,746
Against same time last year.....24,799,490
Decrease to date.....$11,692,744

The exports of Cotton from all the ports of the United States to Foreign States from the 1st September, 1855, the commencement of the crop year, to the present week, amounted to 1,515,000 bales, against 1,116,000 bales same period last year; the difference being equal to an Exchange, in the settlement of Foreign balances of about sixteen million of dollars. The regular Specie balance in the Sub-Treasury department of the Government office, on Saturday afternoon, was $4,190,742, and the aggregate Specie and Bullion to the credit of all the accounts in the office, including the above, was $12,712,517, against $12,229,586. This difference or gain of $478,231, and the outgo of $1,204,746 to Europe, will, of course, in the absence of further receipts from California, lessen the Specie reserve in Bank, from the statement of last week, which stood $15,040,000, though the loss has in no wise affected the supply of Money, which continues easy, by reason of the rising balances left on deposit by the interior banks and local dealers, and which have reached the unexampled aggregate of $67,237,000, after deducting the interexchanges among the City Banks, or $88,604,000 in gross.

The Stock Exchange ruled through the week somewhat inactive for this season of the year, but remarkably steady in prices, which indeed has been the characteristic of the movement for the past four weeks, as will be noticed by the following:

The market closed generally steady on Saturday afternoon; the business limited, owing in part to the announcement that the steamer Africa had been telegraphed off Sandy Hook. We alluded a few days since to the memorial to the Legislature from certain policy holders in the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New-York, for an investigation into the trust funds of the concern. In our last paper we inserted the counter memorial of the Trustees, denying the charges, but inviting such an investigation as the Legislature shall deem proper and most thorough. A further communication on the subject is inserted below, charging, in effect, a want of candor and earnestness upon the Trustees. In giving it place, we beg to state that we are assured, on competent authority, that the Trustees are willing and anxious that the most searching examination shall be had of all their past and current proceedings and investments, and is may say that the Legislature may direct—by bill or resolution, by select Committee or special Examiner.

The new La Crosse & Milwaukee Road earned in February $20,128 on the section of 51 miles recently opened; the weather being exceedingly unfavorable through the entire month.

The regular Auction Sale of Stocks and Bonds by Mr. A. H. NICOLAY will take place today, at the Merchants' Exchange, at 12½ o'clock.

Insurance Company of New-York, the [illegible] the Trustees in its management, [illegible] into their affairs by a Legislative Committee [illegible] Senator Noxon, who opposed the motion originally, opposed it again, and proposed it [illegible] to be referred to a referee, namely, appointed by the Supreme Court, as in the case of the New-York Life Insurance and Trust and the United States Trust Companies. Such an inquiry would not be in conformity with the petition. That stated positively facts pretty generally known in relation to the change in the Board, and that such change was produced by promises obtained by an agent, to whom it was rumored a large sum had been subsequently paid by the Company after the change. What this sum was paid for, is not stated nor implied. The facts, when known, may justify a favorable or an unfavorable inference. (The memorial further stated the report that the funds had been used in an unauthorized manner.) The Trustees' memorial does not deny the facts in relation to the charge, but avers that it is insinuated in the memorial that the trust funds had been paid to an agent for obtaining proxies, and that that charge is without the shadow of foundation. It also asserts that no loans whatever are made upon personal security. It does not deny that such loans have been made, although a careless reader would suppose the whole charge denied. In the investigation proposed by Senator NOXON, (who is a brother-in-law of one of the Trustees,) the facts charged in the first memorial would not be inquired into; and, if he is a well-wisher to the character of the Company, he will not prevent the full investigation asked for through a Legislative Committee. In that mode only can the public be satisfied, and a remedy applied, if any abuses exist, and such an investigation should be had. W.

Latest London Money Market.

London Noon Of Africa, Feb. 23.

Upon the news that Messrs. ROTHSCHILDS' offer for funding had been accepted by the firm at the Chancellor of the Exchequer's minimum, which is equivalent to about 80 ⅌ cent. for consols, the market at once experienced an unfavorable reaction. A total fall of ¾ ⅌ cent. from the opening prices was at one period shown; towards the close more steadiness was manifested, but the final quotations were still ¼@¾ ⅌ cent. below those of yesterday. The aggregate of the subscriptions amounted to upwards of £30,000,000. Notwithstanding the temporary withdrawal of so large a sum from the money market, quietude prevailed to-day in Lombard-street, and elsewhere, but no pressure was expected.

At Paris the three per cent. rentes closed at an average recovery of about ¼ ⅌ cent.

According to the return of the Bank of England, the diminution in coin and bullion amounts to £31,[illegible].

The railway share market maintains a decided firmness.

London Times City Article, Feb. 23.

The TIMES, in a leading article says: Should all go on well at Paris, and should Consols thereupon take an upward start, Government will have the credit of having made a good bargain, at least if its hardness be a proof of its goodness. The public, however, will reasonably take the high rate of the Government minimum as an element in the calculation. Where, indeed, are they to look for confidence if not in Ministers themselves, who can both know and do more than anybody else in the question of peace and war?

London, Friday, Feb. 22, 1856.

The demand for money both at the Bank of England and out of doors continues extremely heavy, but the pressure was mitigated this afternoon
